CUTTING SCRAPE.

Saturday afternoon Edward Stewart and Edward Barlow, both colored, of this city, engaged in a wordy battle, which ended seriously. Stewart and Barlow had been paying attention to the same lady of color and were very jealous of each other, and so when they met by accident Saturday on East Third street, they started to carve upon each other with the result that Barlow was cut badly about the neck and body and Stewart was placed in the county jail by the police. This morning Barlow was in a serious condition and his death is expected at any moment.

It was then ordered the delegates vote as a unit on all questions at the state convention.

The convention went on record and declared themselves as against state wide prohibition in this campaign.

Hon Edwin P. Morrow was endorsed for Governor by the convention.

There was a general good feeling among all present and it was gratifying to see so many of the Progressives back in line, which argues well for the cause. While there was not much enthusiasm displayed, yet it was quite evident from the determined look upon the faces of those present they were gathered there for business and mean to do their part toward swinging Old Kentucky back in the Republican column this fall. So mote it be.

Mr. J. R. Davis, the milkman, came very near losing his right eye Sunday morning in a peculiar way. He was feeding his cows in the stable and while in the stall of one he was about to place some feed in manger, when the cow raised one of her horns, striking Mr. Davis just above his right eye. The horn broke the skin and badly bruised the flesh.

Mr. Robert Curry left Saturday for Newark, O., where he has secured a nice position.

CUTTING SCRAPE ON HORD'S HILL.

Late Saturday night the police of this city were notified that a cutting scrape was in progress on Hord's Hill. The county officials were notified, and Constable James McNamara rushed to the scene of the battle royal. After the smoke had cleared up, he found a colored woman covered with blood, who gave her name as Mrs. William Smeltett, of Hord's Hill. She said she had been cut by a negro man named Charles Jones. The Constable, with a posse consisting of Joseph Marshall and Officer Fizer, obtained an auto from the Central Garage and started to hunt for Jones. They heard he had gone towards the Fleming county line and started after him. Jones eluded them and they returned empty handed. A close watch is being kept for the knife wielder and his arrest is expected today.

Mr. G. W. Owens, Maysville's efficient City Clerk, is confined to his home, suffering from an attack of appendicitis. He is being treated to avoid an operation if possible. His many friends trust he will soon be out, fully restored to health.

The Woman's Guild will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock with Mrs. Martha Power, in Court street.
